An Important Issue In the State Campaign

POLITICAL BOSSISM is one of the leading issues in this campaign so far as the state of Maryland is concerned. The Republican state platform so declares.

The platform points out just who the existing bosses are, for the continuation and enhancement of whose power the Demoeratic organization is strenuously working.

To that end, the platform notes that Governor O'Conor "has broken his own pledge of a single term and rejected the 1938 plank of his party platform"; that he has "forgotten the injunction of Thomas Jefferson concerning rotation in office" and that he "has ignored the grave decision of Maryland as displayed in the final defeat of the late Governor Ritchie, whose shoes, we respectfully submit, Governor O'Conor has failed to fill and whose stride he can-

Thus the governor seeks to entrench himself in power. Now, who are the political bosses hooked up with the governor? The platform elucidates. "Pushing all these brusquely aside," [the things noted in the foregoing! the platform continues, "he has sought to establish a personal political dynasty, ruled by undisclosed advisers and captained by political bosses like E. Brooke Lee and William C. Walsh in the counties, and like William Curran in Baltimore city . . . backed by the financial resources of certain plutocratic retainers." The platform also takes the occasion to point out the dangers of one-party totalitarian government. "Parliamentary governments on the continent of Europe," it states, "have broken down and despotism has taken charge because a multiplicity of small parties weakened national action. Americans, more than ever, should be conwinced that the salvation of our institutions of freedom depends upon the preserwation of the two-party system of government. We reject the tyranny of a oneparty totalitarian government in county, state or nation. Unfortunately, many believe such a one-party totalitarian system impends at Washington fostered by the concentration of powers incident to a state of war. This makes it important to elect representatives in Congress who will stand by the established two-party and constitutional system of government.

"In Maryland, actuated by personal ambition, the present governor is doing all in his power to destroy the two-party system and establish a one-party state. In this he is apparently assisted by a thoughtless press, which promotes in Annapolis what it decries in Washington. . . . In these dark days of national danger, the paramount duty of every citizen is to strive to defeat our enemies and to preserve our institutions of freedom at home. The twoparty system must not be permitted to crash down as a result of war or personal

Maryland citizens should heed these injunctions and go to the polls on November 3 and vote to halt this dangerous trend toward political bossism.

Yes, the War Must Be Shortened

RECOGNITION by President Roosevelt of the seriousness of the manpower situation and his call for rationing it in accord with the growing needs in both the military and domestic fields regardless of the political impact is commendable, although it is not unexpected because the problem has been swiftly aggravating. The objective of the right number in the right places at the might time is obviously correct

No better analogy of the critical state of the manpower problem can be given than the old story about the man who built the boat in his basement and then found that the boat was so big that he couldn't get it out and down to the river without tearing down the house. So, too, is the case with our growing army and naval requirements, particularly the army. Both must be equipped and constantly supplied, and no matter how large it is neither is worth anything unless it is adequately fed, equipped, armed and supplied with ammunition.

Naturally, the extent to which we can do all that will depend in a considerable degree on the quantity of food, equipment and munitions we are called upon to furnish our allies. That has long been a big drain upon our resources; but, being a nation that usually goes to the extremes, we are finding ourselves in pretty much the same predicament that the man was who built the big boat in his basement. Readjustment is necessary. Civilian supply and the means of keeping it going must not be neglected. The president has sensed this great problem and it is well that he has

While the seriousness of this problem is thus tackled by the president and his call for drafting the younger men is another realistic shock for millions of American families, there is a heartening aspect in the optimistic phases of his message, which notes the growing strength of the United Nations and the potentiality of this nation in accentuating it. Herein is the keynote of victory. Everybody is in accord with the president in his aim of shortening the war, and he is right in saying that the American people will not shrink from any necessary action looking to that end.

The Bitter News With the Sweet

THAT we must take the bitter with the sweet in this global war has come to us with startling reality in the announcement by the Navy department of the heavy losses suffered in the night naval battle of the initial phase of the attack on the Solomon islands. Here in Cumberland the severity of the fighting in the South Pacific has been at the same time poignantly impressed by receipt of the information that Lieut. Francis K. Finan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bart J. Finan, was killed in action with the

The losses in the Solomon islands attack were grievous, including three heavy cruisers, two destroyers and four transports, but there is consolation in the report that a majority of the personnel was saved. We can give the navy credit for this thing of saving its men, for whenever it is humanly and physically possible for it do so it will. There is consolation also in the reports of the valiant fighting of all our men and in the important results we now know were achieved. Then, too, the Japs have suffered grievious losses, in all probability much greater than those suffered by the Allies as instanced by the tabulation of thirty-eight ships sunk or damaged, and the notation that other possible losses cannot yet be accurately estimated. It is regrettable that news of such losses cannot be made known for so long a time after they are incurred, but such is the nature of the fighting today. The bitter news can serve only to make us all strengthen our determination to support our valiant fighters to the utmost and to do everything possible to help them on the road to victory.

Can the Army Go To 13,000,000?

THE SIZE of the United States Army necessary to cope with this nation's part in the war is hardly a matter for the layman to decide. He must depend upon the training and wisdom of the military experts. Yet, in view of the tendency of every army, left to itself, to overbuild in its enthusiasm to do a whacking big job and to gain better chances of promotions, the size of the army is at least worth critical study on the score of economic as well as of military necessity. Perhaps we are getting too much through Washington publicity channels as a result of overlapping effort and its resultant lack of co-ordination. But when we hear that we must have an army of 13,000,000 men, it is only natural that laymen are puzzled over such a vast requirement. It has long been declared that it takes approximately eighteen men behind the lines to maintain each soldier in the service properly. On such a basis, if that is correct, the total for the army front and home lines would be around 234,000,000 persons, which is approximately twice the cotal population of the continental United States, including women and children. This, of course, is fantastical.

Somewhere we must strike a balance, and someone in authority should decide what we can reasonably expect to do and what we cannot hope to undertake with any hope of success.

As the war progresses we are more and more inclined to believe that the Chinaman's chance is a great deal better than Mussolini by now - and to his great horror-has discovered that the theater of war has no easily accessible exits.

The fun in giving War stamps a licking is that it will be Hitler who'll feel it!

Jumping over a Stick

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A man said to himself: "I'm afraid I'm getting old. I didn't enjoy that party as much as I thought I would. I was bored and I got sleepy early and wanted to go home before midnight. . . . Younger people seem so much younger than they used to be. They chatter so much and they say so little. . . . I need more sleep, too, and I hate to get up in the morning and nothing could persuade me to take a cold shower.

"I hurt my foot, too, and I swore it was a stone bruise. When it was suggested that it was actually chillblains, I was angry. Of course it Marshall Mastin WASN'T chillblains - they

I find I take creeping on. I hope not. . birthdays more seriously now. Don't greet them so joyfully, wish other people wouldn't notice them, either. That must be a sign of something or other, too. . . . Perhaps I AM getting The man had a little stick in his hand he began to look at it and think about it. It stirred a memory. When he was younger, he could hold that stick in his two hands and jump through it easily. Wonder if he could do it now. Wonder if he dared to try it. It would prove something, too. So he said to his wife: I used to be able to jump through a stick. Watch me and see if I can still do it."

He held that stick in his hands, drew a deep breath, gathered his energies, jumped and there he was, holding that stick behind him. He'd Done It! . . . The first time he tried. And his wife remarked, "You can't imagine how relieved you look."

Why shouldn't he have looked relieved? He wasn't as old as he thought! He'd jump out of his skin of depression and back into his youthful illusion again. He could still jump over a stick-and that was Something!

But don't ask who the man was! It's a secret and you might laugh at his silliness, Though I don't see why-because perhaps you've done silly things, too.

Manpower Looms As Chief Problem Before Country

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 .- President Roosevelt's radio address by ience shared attention with the announcement the naval losses but, against the back ground of this severe drain on our naval forres, the appeal for co-operation from the civilian public will not lose significance but rather gain be-

State cruisers in the Solomons and

heavy casualties.

The president

did not mention

cause of it. Out in the Pacific, the American navy is fighting a tough battleten thousand miles away from the homeland and against a navy that doesn't have to divide its strength in two oceans. The price of the invasion of the Solomons had to be paid to prevent a southern march of the enemy toward Australia and New Zealand and toward our Pacific bases in the Southwest.

The president didn't refer to the dangers that would be incurred in attempting to land troops for an operation in France in what known as a "second front", but he made it abundantly clear that he and the other members of our high command are not going to be influenced by arm-chair strategists or the clamor of those who are not in possession of the facts and who, on account of the censorship, cannot know those essential facts.

Note of Confidence

Notwithstanding the unfavorable news announcement-and it is presumed that our hold in the Solomons is by no means absolutely assured as yet-the president exhibited confidence concerning the whole military and naval outlook. This note of confidence is in contrast to the expressions of those in official Washington who have felt it necessary to issue a scare about our losing the war.

Mr. Roosevelt chose instead to breathe reassurance, and the events in Russia and the steady growth of our air operations over Europe are confirmation of the turn for the better that the war, as a whole, has taken for our side.

Perhaps the most important part of the president's speech was his calm announcement to the American people that he wants legislation drafting the boys from 18 to 20 years of age. He stressed the importance of younger men in the Army. The Congress has committees already at work on legislation, and it is probable that registration will be begun before the end of this year so that the younger men will be called into service shortly after the first of the year.

Draft Revision Necessar

The decision to call the 18 to 20year-olds means that manpower estimates as they relate to the married men both with and without children will have to be revised. If the army is to call the younger men, then the married men doubtless will be deferred, though already many draft boards, because of the unfair quota system now in effect, have summoned married men in some instances.

If married men are called in any great numbers, it is probable that age classifications will be made so that the younger men are summoned to service first. The draft operation requires such a large amount of time and work that the president must have thought it desirable to warn the public about the plan to draft 18 to 20-year olds so as to enable them and their families to make the necessary plans, especially with respect to schools and colleges. The problems of the latter will begin to multiply the moment the government takes the 18 to 20-year olds.

Farm Problem Serious

The president's idea of getting high school boys and citizens generally to pitch in and help with the harvest will be put to the test soon, but it is doubtful whether the solution of the farm labor problem is going to be as simple as that. Possibly when the new manpower legislation is adopted - and it may be enacted sometime in November just after the electionsthere will be a revision of the draft as it affects agriculture. It would be most unfortunate if men had to be called back from the army to help care for the food supply, just as today men are being called back from the army in some sections of the country to help mine certain needed metals. president just gave the country a preliminary view of the manpower problem in more or less gentle terms, Before long, the manpower problem will be the principal issue before the country.

The Local Tax Loads From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Review, published by the Tax Foundation of New York, goes extensively into the question of state and local taxes in these days of extremely heavy federal levies. It disposes effectively of the argument advanced in some quarters that state and local tax rates should be maintained at their old levels, argues that only the maintenance of extravagant activities and payrolls can actuate such a policy, and

After all, the best reserve that a city or a state or even the nation can have is the prosperity of its citizens. Taxation can contribute to that prosperity by taking from the people only what is required for the support of essential services. Then, when emergencies arise, the people are able to support added burdens. The wisest course for the states and cities in the emergency is to protect the future ability of their citizens to pay taxes by levying no more, today, than can be justified by the cost of the most prudent and economical administration of the public services.'

That is a lesson of which the West Virginia State government seems entirely ignorant. One of the major indictments against the Neely administration is that it has not only failed to practice economy in these days of prodigious war spending at Washington, has not only failed to reduce taxes, but has stepped up spending to an all-time high and actually has increased object to high taxation. But they are going to resent the month-aftermonth and year-after-year suspense and confusion that go with constant changing of the tax laws. They are going to resent having to wait until a year is almost gone to find out how much tax they will have to pay on an income that is not be handled, already earned and spent.

There is no logical reason why Mr. Morgenthau's added six billions could not have been included in this tax bill. There is no good reason why an adequate tax bill to mediate predecessor.

Not much is said publicly about these people. From the purely financial standpoint, the Treasury is not alarmed, inasmuch as the September redemptions amounted to only .027 percent of the bonds sold that month.

Hanging a Joke

But then what? Simply hanging or shooting 'em would be a mere joke in comparison with what they're perpetrating. Torturing 'em to death wouldn't have much appeal to the average civilized individual of today. It wouldn't be adequate, either. And no mundane court, sentencing 'em to hell, could feel sure that they mightn't be paroled before eternity expires.

Just whom the Axis leaders are is a subject of some little discus-

Of course, Herr Hitler heads the list. A few of his subordinates also are referred to as responsible for mass-murdering. It may be true, as to a small group, but much emphasis is laid upon the proposition that the United Nations don't advocate wholesale reprisals against the Axis peoples' rank-and-file. Their leaderships are the miscreants the United Nations' investigating commission is probing in advance, in anticipation of post-war trials and penalization.

Hitler in Bad Spot

When that post-war tribunal gets busy, I'd gamble that it'll concentrate on Adolf, and I surmise that he'll be justified in pleading that it'll be so prejudiced in his disfavor as to have difficulty in guaranteeing him a fair and impartal hearing. He'll have to make tae best of it, though. Perhaps some of his underlings will be able to convince the bench that they did only what the Fuehrer ordered 'em to do; that they're entitled to a bit of mercy on that

HERITAGE

Furniture making was a Karpen heritage from several generations of old world cabinet makers. These famous shops, started over 75 years ago, have been creating upholstered furniture for each succeeding generation to claim as prize possessions. True artistry has ever distinguished Karpen design. Years of service has proved its quality. Endorsement of past generations is tradition with the present.

Like Karpen, Beneman's has built and enjoys a fine reputation backed by almost half a century of supplying Western Maryland's homes with such nationally known products. Karpen guaranteed products are sold exclusively at Beneman's in this territory. We invite you to see the newest creations for your Living Room in sofas, chairs, matched ensembles and suites. YESTERDAY: Mary tells Fran about Ken's proposal.

CHAPTER ELEVEN HARVEY'S

THE BUS pulled cautiously through the flooded street to the curb, and Mary, in hooded raincoat, got off and sprinted the dark half block through a heavy, California winter rain, to the apartment. Tonight she didn't mind the rain or the darkness. She could see the light shining from their window and she knew Fran was there waiting up for her. Funny, what a difference it made knowing a person you loved was thinking of you, valting for you.

"DIG 'EM OUT!"

DONATE YOUR SCRAP . . . OR SELL IT BUT BE SURE YOU GET IT OUT

All scrap metal and rubber donated to this vital drive will be sold and the proceeds given to the USO and the American Red Cross . . . If you wish, you may sell your scrap direct to a dealer . . . But, whichever you do . . . please do it now.

Ralph F. McHenry and Moude A. Bean, Chairmen of Rural Scrap Metal Salvage Drive.

BUT... before we can dig them out

WE'VE GOT TO DIG OUT THE SCRAP...

8,000,000 TONS OF IT!

And there's no time to waste... No longer can we afford to play Hitler's game of "Too Little-Too Late" . . . Already our mills are feeling the pinch of a scrap metal shortage... Production of vitally needed ships, planes, tanks, guns and shells is slowed down, in some instances as much as 20% to 25% . . . That cannot be if we expect to win this war . . . and win it we must if we hope to remain free!

FOR ALLEGANY COUNTY

OCTOBER 15th 16th 17th

This scrap metal drive is OUR JOB ... It's a job that too many of us, to our everlasting disgrace, are shirking. . Sure it's hard and dirty and it takes time. . . But at that, it's child's play compared to the job those boys had in the fox holes of Bataan . . . at Corregidor and Wake. This war is not for just a select few. This is total war. Nobody is spared. True, we cannot all fight in the front lines, but we can do a job here at home . . . We can and must help raise the 8,000,000 tons of scrap metal that is vitally needed now by our war production program . . . This is one way that we can all fight.

fun-loving irresponsible family of part-Tahitians into a hilarious whirlpool of frenzied finance in RKO Radio's comedy drama, "The Tuttles of Tahiti," in which Charle Laughton is starred as the champion check writer. The picture is now at the Garden theater.

Rich one day and broke the next as a result of their naive belief that a bank account will last as long as there are checks in a checkbook the family finally extricates itself from its woes and comes up smiling. A delightful love story and tropical settings of romantic beauty make a colorful contrast to the rollicking comedy of the picture.

The supporting cast includes Jos Hall, Peggy Drake, Victor Francen, Florence Bates and Gene Reynolds.

WHICH SIDE IS EGGED?

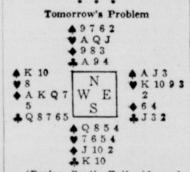

YOU MAY think it makes little or no difference what you bid at some early stage of the auction, but it frequently alters the entire remaining course of it. Choosing one call may make you seem weak, to the opponents, who then may be egged on to go over their depth. Picking another may make you sound stronger than you are, and may have the effect of making your partner go too

4 9 Pass At Table 1 of the duplicate where this hand was dealt, South saw that he had enough for a stretched bid of 2-Diamonds over East's heart call, considering his safe fit with his partner's suit and his useful club singleton. For that reason, he reckoned that 1-Spade would be safe, as he could show a diamond fit later if North did not fit the major. But when he did that, his hand sounded stronger to North than it was, and got his side in trouble. The defenders set North two tricks, with one in hearts, one in diamonds, two in spades and the ruff of a club with the diamond 9.

Where South over the 1-Heart bid 2-Diamonds and then kept his mouth shut, East and West sounded very strong to each other and so went too far by bidding game in hearts. Four tricks were made in a hurry by the defense, the club 8 to the Q, club A, a ruff of a club and the diamond 2 to the A. Later the spade A scored to set the contract two tricks.

If North had bid clubs first, instead of diamonds, what would have occurred?

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.) How should East play for 3-No Trumps on this deal after South leads the spade 4?

50 Poles To Designate Stops on Former Line; Blunk Tells of Plans

Two of Allegany county's largest passenger transportation services have taken steps to conserve rubber, gasoline and equipment by reducing the number of stops on their systems and limiting the speed of their buses to thirty-five miles an hour in compliance with orders is-

L and A. Bus Line, which operates twenty-five carriers between Cumberland and Keyser and from Cum berland to other points in West Virginia, and averages 2,500 passenger announced yesterday that have been painted to designate the only points at which passengers may board or be discharged from buses

Bus Stops Designated a point ten feet from the ground on each pole there is a letter "V" for victory and beneath it is inscribed "Bus Stop," The lettering appears in a thirty inch space with white background. Poles located along the L. and A bus route leading to Ridgeley and Paw Paw will be painted with similar markings in

There will be no more stops at John Jones's house nor at every double house twice under the presregulations" Lashley said "Drivers of buses are under orders to stop at the poles designated by Bus Stop' markings and limit their

The L. and A. manager said that heretofore buses stopped at approximately 150 places along the Cumberland to Keyser route to take on and unload passengers but sixtyseven per cent of these old stops have been eliminated.
